Status

Alternate Service Doukhobors who registered and performed four months of alternate service (the time equivalent to military recruit training) at work camps under The National War Services Regulations. The majority (71) were interned at a work camp near Montreal Lake, SK between June 29 and October 29, 1941 where they performed road construction. Another unidentified group was interned at a work camp near Rabbit Lake, SK where they cleared timber and cut cordwood. Individual Doukhobors were interned at work camps elsewhere, including one at Seebe, AB.

Prosecution Doukhobors who refused to register and perform alternate service under The National War Services Regulations, which they regarded as equivalent to military service. They were prosecuted, and on conviction, fined and/or sentenced to four months of prison. The majority (91) were incarcerated at Prince Albert Gaol in 1941. Individual Doukhobors were incarcerated at the Regina and Lethbridge Gaols. They were then subject to further call-ups (conscription) for military service.
